Leave a Legacy

Work Place Giving

Encourage your employer to participate in a workplace giving campaign and campaign and suggest Capital Humane Society as a possible choice. A great way to help the animals and show community support!

Thousands of U.S. companies and corporate foundations match their employees' gifts to nonprofit organizations. Encourage your company to add this fun benefit and join several local organizations supporting non-profits in your community.

Many companies encourage their employees to be volunteers. Some will send a check to a charity based on an employee volunteer hours and others will give their employees a day off to go and volunteer.

Encourage your employer to display a shelter donation canister. Money collected can be picked up by a shelter staff person on a scheduled basis.

Participate in our "Round Up" program. Designate a 1-3 month period when you ask each customer to round up their purchase at the register. It's great awareness for the organization and also benefits us financially. It's also great PR for the business and promotes your community outreach.

Bequests

Perhaps the most straightforward planned giving option is to make a bequest in your will. Regardless of your age or financial status, a will is essential to ensure that your property is distributed according to your wishes instead of the arbitrary laws of the state in which you live.

Naming The Shelter as a Beneficiary

If you have a life insurance policy that is no longer needed to provide for dependants, consider making the shelter the beneficiary. This may enable you to make a significant gift without using any of your estate's capital. A further option is to make the shelter both the beneficiary and owner of a paid-up policy. Doing so will earn you an immediate tax deduction equal to the policy's cash value.

Some assets, such as IRA's Keogh Plans, and other qualified retirement plans require you to name a beneficiary. Consider making the shelter a full or partial beneficiary on these as well as a Successor of Interest of a Contract, Charitable Lead or Charitable Remainder Trusts. Such plans can be excellent choices for charitable gifting because they are taxed more heavily than other assets-sometimes greater than 60 percent. An easy planned giving option is to buy a Certificate of Deposit (CD) name Capital Humane Society as a beneficiary, payable-on-death.

Gifts of Property/Real Estate

Gifts of appreciated property can be given to the shelter through a donor's will or living trust.
